

Policy Overview:

To establish guidelines for the identification, provision, and allocation of support services for students of the RTOs. This policy is intended to provide information to staff regarding their responsibilities and to ensure that students receive the support they require ensuring that the support is responsive, adequate and appropriate to all students.

Objective:

To ensure a systematic process occurs nationally by implementing a centralised academic and personal support system to all students enrolled with the RTO, which is consistent and meets the organisations business objectives and compliance needs against the Standards of RTOs 2015.

Staff Responsible:

This applies to all;

- State Managers
- Operations Manager
- National Curriculum, Compliance & Quality Manager (NCCQM)
- Compliance & Quality Department (CQD)
- Training Advisors (BDM)
- Trainers and Assessors
- Student Administration Manager
- Branch Administrators

Reasonable adjustment

A form of adjustment to an assessment to assist a student who is disadvantaged when undertaking an assessment in its normal form.

aXcelerate

The RTO student management system (SMS) used to manage students and their studies.

1. Overview of Student Support Services

It is the responsibility of the RTO to allow the individual learner to meet the requirements of the training product as specified in training packages or VET accredited courses by identifying any barriers that may impact on the students learning experience and achievement. If any barriers are identified, access should be offered to applicable individual support services to attempt to ensure that the barriers can be overcome. Such support services will be identified and provided during all stages of the student journey including prior to enrolment, at enrolment and commencement, and during their studies until their completion.

These services should be provided by suitably qualified persons and may include although not limited to:

1.1 Cultural support

People from all social and cultural backgrounds will be equally treated and due respect will be given to people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds.

1.2 Disability support

Offering students with a recognised disability the necessary support services to meet their individual needs physically and academically through highly qualified external services with appropriate resources to assist the recognised disability.

1.3 Family support

Offering student support when they are dealing with family issues.

1.4 Financial support

Offering students a payment plan to fee for service enrolled students or providing students with guidance to Government support services.

1.5 Information Technology (IT) support

Providing the support to assist students in applying IT skills relevant to the training program by the RTO internal IT staff or qualified/experienced trainers.

1.6 Language, Literacy & Numeracy (LLN) support

Identified by the student conducting an LLN online assessment during the enrolment process where students are assessed against the ACSF levels for the qualification they are studying.

1.7 Learning support

Support to assist different learner styles by providing strategies such as additional time to complete the course and assessment, contextualised resources, additional activities to assist in understanding or facilitation/teaching approach.

1.8 Mentoring/Coaching

Assisting students by offering a structured mentoring or coaching program by highly qualified trainers or other RTO staff.

1.9 Professional Counselling

Referring students to professional external counselling services.

1.10 Study support

Students provided with guidance and resources to assist and guide them during self-based study.

1.11 Travel support

Offering support around travel arrangements when the student has to travel as part of their studies or assessment.

1.12 Work-based training support

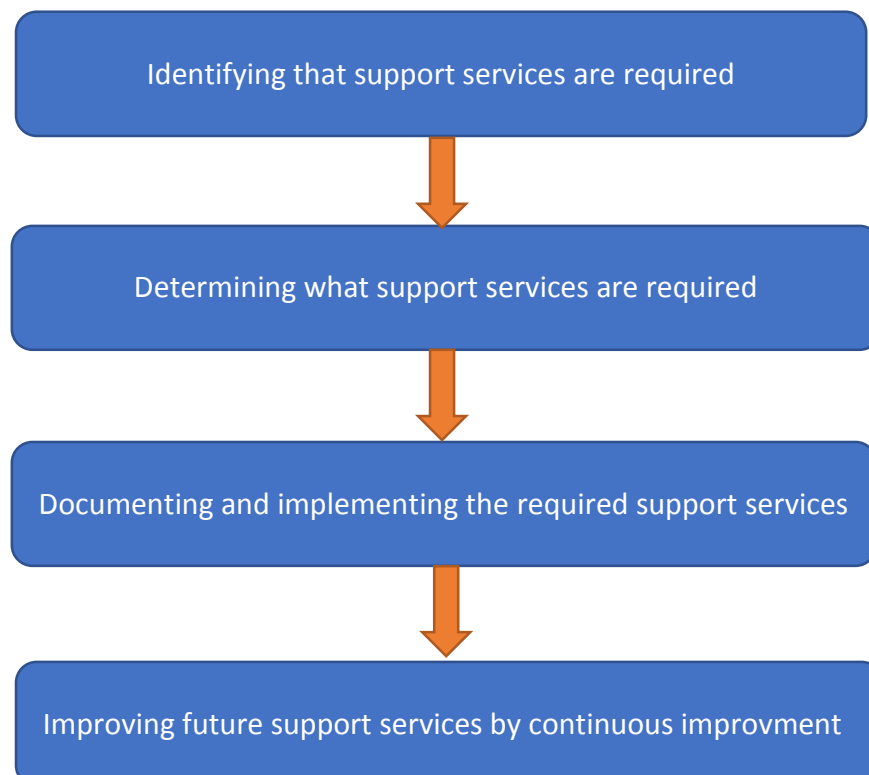

Offering support when a student is undertaking workplace learning and assessment.

2. Support services and reasonable adjustment

Student support services and reasonable adjustment are not the same thing. Support services are defined as possible support requirements during all aspects of the students journey, while reasonable adjustment is a form of support offered by academic staff to students who are disadvantaged in some manner during the assessment process of their studies. Guidance around reasonable adjustment can be found in the P-018 Reasonable Adjustment Policy & Procedure.

3. The support services process

The support services process is made up of four sequential steps that should be completed in order as displayed below:

Each step of the process is explained in further detail below, and each has its own procedure that should be followed.

4. Identifying support

It is the responsibility of all RTO staff to identify students who require additional assistance. RTO staff should endeavour to identify students who require support assistance. This assistance may be personal, emotional, psychological or medical in nature or a combination of these factors.

Students requiring additional support may be identified by:

- Staff members
- Fellow students
- Through self-reporting
- Through systems designed to detect support requirements such as online LLN entrance assessment

Some examples of factors that may require additional support include, but are not limited to:

- A physical disability or medical condition
- A psychological disability or mental illness condition such as depression, anxiety, or Post-Stress Trauma Disorder(PSTD)
- Experiencing personal life events or dealing with lingering issues from previous personal life trauma
- Low education level
- Social awkwardness, anxiety or being around other people
- Being a victim of bullying during their studies or outside of their studies
- Emotional instability following a breakdown of personal relationship
- Difficulty sustaining studying with other life priorities
- Addiction to substances or gambling
- Financial troubles or currently facing financial hardship
- Difficulty with the transition to studying from working

Staff should be conscious for the following student behaviours which may indicate support is warranted:

- persistent bad mood
- lack of motivation/interest in their studies
- signs of stress, anxiety or panic attacks
- unpredictable behaviour, mood, or attitude
- signs of disorientation or delusion
- shutting down and not communicating
- withdrawal from social situations
- marked differences in academic performance and/or attendance

- constant worrying about their studies
- disruptive physical or verbal behaviour
- violent tendencies
- marked change in physical appearance
- being affected by drugs or alcohol

Refer to the procedures: 1. Identifying Student Support Procedure and 2. Determining Student Support Required Procedure.

5. Reporting & Recording Requirements

All staff are responsible for reporting and recording any conversations they have with student in regards to student support services. The F-013 Student Support Form should be used for this purpose, with entries made within aXcelerate, documenting support activities that have occurred in relation to the details recorded in the Student Support Form.

The Operations Manager is responsible for monitoring the effectiveness of the RTO reporting process and for ensuring all records are completed accurately and maintained to demonstrate that support has been provided.

At all times the RTO must remain conscious of the student's privacy and confidentiality during all contact between the staff and the student.

Refer to the following procedure: 3. Documenting Student Support Procedure.

6. Improving student support services

Through the RTO's continuous improvement process, the staff involved in providing the support services are responsible for sourcing feedback from the student who was provided the support services on how this might be improved in future, and feeding these through to the National Compliance and Quality Manager.

Refer to the following procedure: 4. Improving future support activities.
